From the Ad Team This Month:

Lloyd Lovely, Deputy Executive Director Finance & Support

The auditors are coming! The auditors are coming!

Ok, so it's not really that big of a deal. But that's good! That's even the whole point, actually. It's a good sign when we don't mind the annual financial audit, because it indicates that the Library has good accounting controls and has a good system for reporting its financial results. And while audits are not really designed to detect fraud, the auditors do keep their eyes open for any indications of that. It seems that every day there is an article in the news about some company, government entity, or non-profit organization that has suffered some loss from a trusted employee who has misused funds, so we want to always be open to any chance to prove that we are doing what is right.

With all that high and mighty stuff said, it is a lot of work to prepare all the reports, spreadsheets, and other data that the auditors need in order to review our finances, so you may still see the accounting staff muttering to themselves when you pass them in the halls. Just give them a wide berth – they're really harmless.

The Grant and Thornton firm has already begun its preliminary work, and will start in earnest on August 16th. The firm is scheduled to present their findings to the Commission at its October meeting.

Non-Traditional Book Marketing

Penny C. Sansevieri is the founder and CEO of Author Marketing Experts, Inc. I know. I've never heard of her either, but she recently published a blog entry called Beyond the Bookstore: Holding Book Events in Non-Traditional Venues (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/penny-c-sansevieri/beyond-the-bookstore-hold_b_648024.html) that is packed with ideas libraries might be able to adapt for author-related programming.

Example: Are you hosting an author who writes books on handicrafts? How about calling the nearest Hobby Lobby and setting up an author event with them—that includes publicity for your library?

"Once you take your eye off of the bookstore focus," Sansevieri writes, "the opportunities for book events are endless. Consider the following: street fairs, farmers' markets, gyms, yoga studios, wineries, art stores, Starbucks, coffee shops, restaurants, grocery stores."

There's a lot more here than most libraries can find ways to use, but it's an eyeopening read that will get the programmer's juices flowing. Take a look.

Lending Library Review: It's Business, NOT Personal: Taming Emotions in the Workplace

I don't want to fake you out
Take or shake or forsake you out
I ain't lookin' for you to feel like me
See like me or be like me
All I want to do is, baby, be friends with you.

When you get to work, it's sometimes difficult to leave your troubles in the car and you end up toting a big ol' sack of grump in the door with you. It's on days like that you can hurt the feelings of everyone around you—and you're set up for someone to hurt yours. Leaving all your emotions behind when you leave for work is impossible, but remember that what goes on at work should be work related.

Here's a brief introductory video, presented as if you were watching chatters on a TV talk show, that can help you not take it personally when disagreements spring up at work.

DOOR COUNT

Say it's a really busy day and you'd be willing to bet that at least every citizen of Oklahoma County came into your library, bringing with them their summer guests. You want an exact door count. Did you know that you can get one?

Go to the MLS Intranet page and select Resources and then Reports & Statistics. On the left you'll see Library Usage Stats—click on that. Now choose Daily Door Counts. Now pick your library and the date you want to check, and whammy, there it is.

One week out of every year we had to supply a door count to ODL. With that device in the small black box you may have seen Researcher Stuart Williamson installing recently, keeping track of library traffic is a piece of cake and we can feed ODL as often as it gets hungry for data.

Any questions about the new Door Count capabilities can be sent to Stuart.

Hallowen Parade

Several years ago we saw a book on librarianship with a cover that made us wince. It featured a photo from the 1890s of a line of lady librarians. Each one was turned half-way to the camera with her right hand on the shoulder of the woman in front of her. All had high hair done up in buns, and unconvincing smiles. It looked like an Andy Warhol portrait of Lizzie Borden.

It's an image we're still trying to dismantle and some of our gutsier staff take a good whack at it every year during the Halloween Parade through Bricktown. Emily Williams (OUT) is putting together this year's group, and she invites everyone to take part. You get to dress up and wear your favorite Halloween horror makeup. Come on . . . it'll be fun.

"We've participated the past two years," Emily said, "with great success. This year the parade will be at 7:00p.m. on Saturday, October 23."

Emily and her team are in the preliminary stages of the planning process and she'd like to get at least a rough number of people who'd like to join in, so send her an email at ewilliams@ metrolibrary.org, or call her at 606-3834. Participation is work time so you'd have to have your manager approve it.

Building a Reading City

Wouldn't it be great to live in a city that put as much value on reading as it does the forward pass? Well, we may not be there yet, but we're trying.

Let us know what you've been reading lately and we'll mention it in a future edition of "Building a Reading City." Send your titles to dbentin@metrolibrary.org.

Doug Bentin, Communications Specialist in MaC: Betrayers by Bill Pronzini, The Girls of Murder City: Fame, Lust, and the Beautiful Killers Who Inspired "Chicago" by Douglas Perry, Secret Agent "X":

*Just kidding on reading it.

The ShelfLife Quiz: Who Goes With What?

What do these things have in common: a whale, a monster, a gibbering mass of tentacles, and a book that contains everything but a yacht race? They are all the literary creations of people born in the month of August.

For our quiz this month, we'll give you one word that represents in some way a famous work by an August birthday author. You match the word with the writer. Ready? Here goes – a. Herman Melville, Aug. 1 1. Enterprise b. P.B. Shelley, Aug. 4 2. Roots c. Alex Haley, Aug. 11 3. ___ Poetry d. H.P. Lovecraft, Aug. 20 4. ___ Cthulhu e. Ray Bradbury, Aug. 22 Mars f. Leo Tolstoy, Aug. 28 6. Prometheus g. Gene Roddenberry, Aug. 19 7. Scrivener __ Adultery h. Mary Shelley, Aug. 30

"I Write Like" Who?

Style—we've all got our own, right? Well, not according to Dmitry Chestnykh, a 27-year-old Russian software programmer, who has created a website you can visit to find out what famous author's writing style is most like yours.

You just cut and paste a couple of paragraphs of your prose and push the button. Voila! Instantly you find out which of the 50 or so well-known writers whose work has been downloaded into the "I Write Like" program is most like the way you write. It's all totally meaningless, but fun just the same.

"I Write Like" can be accessed at http://iwl.me/ Of course, we had to check it out. You might or might not be surprised to find out that this article is in the style of Cory Doctorow. We've never even read Cory Doctorow. Who knew?

Bloodborne Pathogens

know—"Bloodborne Pathogens"—it sounds like a series on HBO you deny you watch, but it's actually a lot more significant than that.

Every third quarter of the year (July-August-September) for MLS Safety Training we all have to brush up on bloodborne pathogens. The following are the safety materials that must be examined by all staff during this quarter.

- 1. Bloodborne Pathogens PowerPoint (click on link or locate in the Safety Training Library) or Bloodborne Pathogens training materials available through the Safety Training Library
- 2. the Exposure Control Program (click on link or locate in the MLS Safety Manual)

Be sure to count the exact time it takes you to complete each item, and complete the entire safety form before sending it to Denise Courts in Human Resources. You can go to the Intranet/Forms section to locate the 3rd Quarter Safety Report Form.

Finally, remember that each quarter we must complete 30 minutes of safety training, so if the bloodborne pathogens training doesn't take 30 minutes to complete, other training must be added to meet the 30 minute safety training requirement.

Here are the clues to this month's mystery person.

Fave Music: Van Morrison Fave Book(s): The Bootlegger's Boy

awana Morgan, Circ Clerk, has worked at Ralph Ellison for six years.

She plays ping pong for fun and watches OU Football and the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team.

Lawana recently read Don't Block the Blessings: Revelations of a Lifetime, by Patti LaBelle.

Singing is also a part of Lawana's life when she sings at karaoke events.

One of Lawana's favorite things to do at the library is playing Spoticus and greeting RE customers with a smile!
