MLS Staff Volunteers Rock Heartwalk

Well, you guys did it again. Several MLS Heartwalk Team Captains attended the American Heart Association's Heartwalk prize luncheon and not only did they have a great time celebrating over a million dollars raised this year, they were on hand to pick up some awards.

"We rocked the Heartwalk with 320 participants all wearing t-shirts designed by Rick George (MaC) and sponsored in part by myIPGI" said Heidi Port, "The rest of the walkers took note, because we not only looked fantastic during the walk, the t-shirt won best design for Heartwalk 2013! Way to go, Rick!"

"Also, the Metropolitan Library System received the distinction of being a Gold Level Fit-Friendly Company. As one of only 16 companies to be honored as Fit Friendly, we should be really proud of the Wellness benefits we receive as employees and the hard work of our HUM Staff. You can view our award in the HUM Office next time you're Downtown.

"As far as personal achievers go, Tim Daubenspeck was a 2013 Top Heartwalker and received a medal for personally raising over $1,000.00! Attaboy, Tim!"

"Together, the MLS Staff Volunteers raised a total of $7,750.00 for the American Heart Association. What an honor to work with people who go above and beyond to make a difference in their community and show our rockin' MLS spirit!"

And that just about says it all.

WAY TO GO!

Things Librarians Love

Downtown Library Circ Clerk Chelsi House recently sent out an email directing readers to a BuzzFeed article about the 30 things that librarians love.

The list has some amusing statements:

- #14 "Being territorial about your cart."
- #15 "...and customizing it."
- #16 "And book cart drill teams."

Other favorites are #19, "Being a better search engine than Google," and #30, "Defying Librarian Stereotypes, including probably some of the things on this list."

It's an amusing piece and if you haven't seen it already, take a look:

<http://www.buzzfeed.com/jessicamisener/things-librarians-love>

#10. Scaring your co-workers in the stacks.

Lending Library: The Laughing Librarian: A History of American Library Humor

By Jeanette C. Smith

In the public imagination, librarians are frequently seen as the perennial old maids (of both sexes), the Dudgeon Masters in a game customers will always lose if they raise their voices.

If we're often the butt of the joke, we can also be the merry pranksters who tell the joke. We can be funny. Really.

Here's the book that proves it. "The spectrum of library humor from sources inside and outside the profession ranges from the subtle wit of the New Yorker to the satire of Mad. This examination of American library humor over the past 200 years covers a wide range of topics and spans the continuum between light and dark, from parodies to portrayals of libraries and their staffs as objects of fear. It illuminates different types of librarians--the collector*, the organization person, the keeper, the change agent--and explores stereotypes like the shushing little old lady with a bun, the male scholar-librarian, the library superhero, and the anti-stereotype of the sexy librarian**. Profiles of the most prominent library humorists round out this lively study."

Author Jeanette C. Smith received the first-ever Edmund Lester Pearson Library Humor Award for a cautionary essay on the hazards of reading and driving. She has been a librarian since 1973 and a collector of library humor for almost as long. She lives in Las Cruces, New Mexico.

This is a book you'll definitely want to check out to read. It costs $50. No joke.

*I don't want to mention any names because I hate myself already, but a particular writer of ShelfLife articles lives up to this definition perfectly.

**One of the 30 Things That Librarians Love is the idea of the sexy librarian. I won't bother to find an illustration because it'll just get cut before publication anyway, but you can find a reasonably acceptable example in the website listed under the article at left.

Editor's note: Whatever, Doug ;)

It's on the Intranet

How often do you go into the MLS Intranet to see what's going on in the system? You can find all kinds of reports there, as well as commentary from staff on a variety of subjects. It's not all just Calendar of Events.

For instance, recently Materials Selection posted some information that you might want to pass on to a customer with interest in how our collection of material grows. For instance, when you check out the report you'll see that during the month of June, Mat. Sel. selected 5,134 titles contributing to a monthly total of 33,273 items. That ended the fiscal year with 41,560 titles and 263,504 additional items. If you explain to a customer that s/he can always suggest titles for purchase, you can point out that MSL received 1,247 suggestions in June for stuff to buy, and that they closed out the year with 16,442 suggestions.

You can also point out that these numbers are increasing. In FY12, 25,529 new titles were cataloged, 1,746 of these being eMedia, and in FY13, 32,153 new titles went through cataloging, 8,594 being media.

This is just a smidgen of the data made available in the Mat. Sel. report, and that is just one report out of many on the Intranet. You should get into the habit of taking a look.

Here are the clues to this month's mystery person.

What profession would you be in if you were not working at MLS? Probably (hint) working at the First Edition Café.

If you could witness any event past, present or future, what would it be? I want to see what 37 years in the future looks like, 2050... I'm interested to see how humanity will have progressed.

STAFF PROFILE Fingerprints

Risa White, "I have worked for MLS for a total of about two and a half years, first at ED as a half-time librarian, now at NW. I have worked or volunteered in libraries for four additional years outside of MLS."

Risa's spare time is taken up by "a little bit of everything - sewing, knitting, building with wood, home repair and remodeling, drawing and painting. I also enjoy learning new programming languages and playing with new (and old) technologies."

Also in her spare time, "I have two children, a daughter who is 11 and entering junior high and a son who is 14 and entering high school. I have a boyfriend that I've been dating for two wonderful years. I also have two grey tabby cats, Snuggles and Leo. Leo came from the NW library parking lot after being abandoned one night.

My favorite part of being a librarian is helping young people get excited about reading and finding new books they want to read."

Building a Reading City: Reviewers Edition

You read their reviews every month in info magazine. You hang on their every word. Admit it—you want to be them. Yes, I'm referring to our squad of MLS book reviewers. But of course, they don't review everything they read. Here are some titles they recommend, but decided for one reason or another not to review in info.

Phyllis Davidson, DN:

The Coroner's Lunch by Colin Cotterill—In 1972, Dr. Siri Paiboun, the national coroner of Laos, solves political murders with a little help from "the spirits."

Death of Yesterday by M. C. Beaton—In this 28th installment of the Scottish Highlands Sergeant Hamish Macbeth series, a young woman reports that her sketch book was stolen in a pub during a night of drinking, and then she turns up dead.

Linda Hyams, DN:

Olympia Snowe's Fighting for Common Ground 2013, didn't review it because I think politics are too controversial and everyone has an opinion.

The Everything Guide to Foraging: Vickie Schufer: A great book with some really great information as I prepare for the zombie apocalypse.

Mrs. Mike, Benedict Freedman, a book I read when I was a teenager and found in system. It is a book that has been reprinted many times. It is the story of a pioneer woman who marries a Canadian Mountie and travels across the wilds of America. Although when I was a teen, I thought it was a true story, it apparently is a fictionalized account based on diaries. It was and still is a wonderful read that I didn't know the system had until I was discussing the book with Buddy Johnson. The first thing I noticed is that my recollection of what the story was about was a bit different than what I read now so many years later.

Christine Bassett, (BE)

Great Tales From English History: A Treasury of True Stories about the Extraordinary People -- Knights and Knaves, Rebels and Heroes, Queens and Commoners -- Who Made Britain Great by Robert Lacey.

This is eminently readable and highly entertaining, presenting a new perspective on people and historical facts in easily digestible short chapters.

Doug Bentin, (MaC) : Just finished a collection of stories reprinted from the comic book Crime Does Not Pay, one of the most infamous titles from the 1940s-50s era. One of the editors, Bob Wood, proved that crime doesn't pay when he murdered his girlfriend, spent time in prison, and then was murdered by thugs when he got out. The book's not in system, alas.

Jana Hausburg (CH)

Okay, I just finished reading Anna Karenina, by Leo Tolstoy. I don't review classics because, well, they're classics, and most people have already read them for a college assignment or whatnot (although I saw a study recently that listed the top 20 books people pretend to have read, and Anna Karenina is #9) http://bookriot.com/2013/07/17/top-20-books-you-pretend-to-have-read/?doing\_wp\_cron=1374847231.9786279201507568359375

But if you are looking for a tragic love story, you won't want to miss this 900+ page epic: unhappily married woman meets handsome military officer and has a scandalous affair which ends in her decapitation by train.

Sally McCurry (DC)

I'm currently reading And the Mountains Echoed by Khaled Hosseini. Set in Afghanistan, this is a rare book that reveals every human weakness (I counted) and offers such sweet redemption. Just finished Only The Bird Savors by Will Cobb, a dystopian story in the dust storm beset Colorado and peopled with illegal immigrants in shantytowns, Mormon survivalists, a grieving ornithologist, an unwed mother and child, and make it all about the redemptive power of forgiveness and acceptance, all while counting birds...

Immobility by Brian Evenson (shudder), an existential dystopian book, Immobility made me doubt my perceptions of reality as Sartre's Being and Nothingness never could.

In the After is another dystopia inhabited by zombies, ho-hum...

Bethany Library Readers Love Their Free Books

Daniel Fields shared two photos from Bethany's Summer at the Library program. "Two children who are among the more than 700 children and teens who have received a free book at Bethany, thanks to the generosity of the Sonic Drive-ins. Sage Anderson, age 11, liked Star Wars. Acacia Thomas, age 6, chose Llama, Llama Mad at Momma. Acacia reads for me from time to time and is an amazing reader!"

Acacia Thomas, age 6.

Sage Anderson, age 11.

You Got Talent? Prove It!

You come to work every day (well, it seems like every day) and you never have any idea of the hidden talents that exist all around you. Sure, you know that you have a remarkable facility for charming our feathered friends out of the trees with your astonishing repertoire of bird calls, but do you ever wonder what talents are held by the people you work with?

Soon you'll have the opportunity to be dazzled by MLS staff talent at the Sept. 13 Staff Talent Show. It's the annual Staff Association Meeting, held this year in the Atrium of the Downtown Library.

As the official announcement put it:

"Calling all musicians, poets, artists, singers, comics, rappers, dancers, thespians, jugglers, magicians, impressionists and all other talented people! Have you been looking for the perfect venue to showcase your talents to your fellow MLS staff? Well, look no further!

For our 2013 annual meeting, the Staff Association will be holding an 'open mic night' and wants YOU to share your talents with the rest of the staff. The evening's festivities will also include food and beverages."

It's free for performers and SA members; friends and relatives can purchase tickets for five bucks a pop. There'll be an RSVP form on the Intranet you'll need to fill out, but come on, if you can balance a computer monitor on the tip of your nose while riding a unicycle, you can fill out an online form.

Still Time to Apply for Lee B. Brawner Scholarship

You may have seen the recent announcement from HUM informing staff that the applications for the Lee B. Brawner Scholarship will be accepted through August 9.

Okay, but do you know what this scholarship is?

It's for full-time employees who have successfully completed the six month performance appraisal period prior to the beginning of the fall semester. You can apply for a reimbursement of up to $150 per undergraduate credit hour or up to $200 per graduate credit hour for a maximum of 18 credit hours per fiscal year—for tuition, books/materials and fees—for courses leading to an approved degree. The course work must relate to their present position or that prepare them for a promotional opportunity with the library system. The study and course work must be completed on the employee's own time although their supervisors have the discretion to "flex" the employee's regular work schedule to help accommodate the course work.

Hey, it's a little extra cash to put toward something that's good for you and you want to do anyway. Where's the downside? Details of the scholarship program and application forms are available on the INTRANET under Human Resources > Benefits > Scholarships.

Please contact Elizabeth Kessler at 606-3746 if you have any questions.

The ShelfLife Quiz:

Poisoned Pens

If you're like me, and I know you are, you look forward every year to August, specifically August 4, the anniversary of America's most intriguing murder case. 'Twas on that date in 1892 that someone took an axe to Andrew Borden and his second wife, Abby, and left them slightly the worse for wear. Did daughter Lizzie do it? She was acquitted, but doubt endures.

Real life murder cases have provided the inspiration for tales and novels since Edgar Allan Poe (who else?) created the murderous roman a clef in 1842. See if you can match the case with the story or novel suggested by it.

The Cases:

1. The serial killer was Williams Heirens, "The Lipstick Killer," who left a message at the scene of one of his murders: "for heaven's sake catch me before I kill more".
2. The O.J. Simpson case was behind this novel by a writer well-known for his connection to crime.
3. This exhaustive novel on the life and crimes of Gary Gilmore won the Pulitzer Prize.
4. The murder of bridge expert Joseph Elwell has faded from memory, as has this first novel in a once-famous series of detective stories.
5. Perhaps the most famous novel-based-on-true crime of them all, inspired by the bizarre crimes of "The Butcher of Plainfield" WI.
6. Partially based on the mysterious death of call girl Starr Faithful in 1931.

7. The author of this novel studied the Chester Gillette/Grace Brown murder for almost 20 years before beginning to write. Even Woody Allen used plot material from this one.
8. This huge bestseller from 1958 was written by the defense attorney in the trial of the crime the novel was based on. He later became a judge on the Michigan Supreme Court.
9. Another bestseller, this one used elements from the murder of small time hood Johnny Stompanato, at the time the boyfriend of movie star Lana Turner.
10. The ground zero of fact-based murder fiction, suggested by the disappearance and murder of Mary Rogers, "the beautiful cigar girl," in 1841.

The Choices

- A. Butterfield 8, by John O'Hara
- B. Anatomy of a Murder, by Robert Travers
- C. Dying in the Postwar World, by Max Allan Collins
- D. The Executioner's Song, by Norman Mailer
- E. An American Tragedy, by Theodore Dreiser
- F. The Mystery of Marie Roget, by Edgar Allan Poe
- G. Another City, Not My Own, by Dominick Dunne
- H. The Benson Murder Case, by S.S. Van Dine
- I. Where Love Has Gone, by Harold Robbins
- J. Psycho, by Robert Bloch
