

Characteristics of Mysteries

1. PACING – Since all Mysteries move toward the solution of the puzzle, pacing is relentless and compelling, sometimes slowed by details of time and place, but always moving inexorably toward the solution.
2. STORY LINE – The solving of a crime, usually a murder, drives the plot, and the detective, along with the reader, sorts through the available clues to discover the solution. Readers and the detective understand "whodunit" and why by the book's conclusion.
3. CHARACTERIZATION – The story focuses on the investigator or an investigative team. Mysteries are often written as a series, following the investigator through several cases. Secondary characters, whether suspects or supporting characters in the investigation, play an important role in the appeal of the Mystery and may also be series characters.
4. FRAME/SETTING – The frame in which the Mystery is set—whether a physical location or fascinating background details—plays a crucial role in its appeal.
5. TOPE/MOOD – The mood of Mysteries ranges from dark and gritty to lighthearted and witty with a multitude of variations in between.
6. STYLE/LANGUAGE – The broad scope of the genre, embracing countries around the world and involving widely differing classes of characters and historical periods, demands a range of language and narrative styles.
